A Guide to German Sources

At the Nebraska State Historical Society

Compiled 2016 by Gail Shaffer Blankenau

The Kansas-Nebraska Act of 1854 created Nebraska Territory, which initially comprised Montana, as well as parts of what became South Dakota, North Dakota, Wyoming and Colorado. The Nemaha and Nebraska City land offices opened for the pre-emption of lands¹ in 1857. Once the land was surveyed and open for sale, Germans were among the many people who came to settle here.

The Homestead Act of 1861 brought another wave of settlers; many of them Germans who had “stopped over” in places east like New York, Ohio, Wisconsin, Illinois, and Iowa. Be aware that the completed Nebraska Homestead land case entry files have been digitized and are available at www.fold3.com. Those land entries not completed may be found in local county deed offices. Nebraska became a state in 1867.

If your German family arrived in Nebraska before statehood, there are territorial records available in the manuscripts division.

Genealogy Tips

You will want to collect as much information as you can in local, state, and federal records, much as you would with any individual. Start with what you know. Collect vital records, census records, cemetery records, land records, county and local histories, probate records, etc.

The more you know about the individual, the more likely you are to be successful in finding out more about his or her lineage and place of origin for further progress in your genealogical research.

If your direct ancestor does not yield the clues you are seeking, expand your search to family members and close associates. One of them may have left more records to point you in the right direction.

Finding the Germanic place of birth

- Obituaries from local newspapers
- Obituaries from German language newspapers
- Naturalization records – we have a pre-1907 naturalization index for Nebraska and eastern Iowa. Later naturalizations are in the county district court records and are more likely to have the hometown.

¹ This term was used in the 1800s to refer to a settler’s right to purchase public land at a minimum price—much like a right of first refusal.
- County and local histories – these are arranged alphabetically by county
- Local church records
- Probate records – we do not have these for all counties
- German POW Camp papers on 15 reels of microfilm
- Nebraska 1890 Gazetteer as a substitute for the 1890 census, which was largely destroyed in a fire.
- Passenger lists, both arrival records and departure records from German ports.
- Bibles
- Genealogies for your surname and associated families
- Funeral cards
- Birth and death certificates (these often only have the country)
- Auswanderer lists – in books and also online
- Oaths of allegiance
- Passport applications
- Military pensions

Church Records in Nebraska Archives – One of the best sources of information for Germanic ancestors are records from their local church. Look at finding aids for manuscript collections – Even if the church name does not indicate the church was German, many of these churches have changed names through the years and may have German immigrant ancestors in them.

Tip: Many obituaries indicate what church held the funeral, which can help to identify the correct church to explore. Here are just a few of the titles you may want to check on microfilm at the Nebraska State Historical Society:

- Alexandria Meridian German Presbyterian Church (Alexandria, Neb.), 1873-1925 [RG4904]
- Hickman German Presbyterian Church (Hickman, Neb.), 1878-1968 [RG2655]
- Humboldt German Evangelical Church Society (Humboldt, Neb.), 1880-1980 [RG4008]
- Humboldt German Methodist Church (Humboldt, Neb.), 1860-1924 [RG3078]
- Humboldt German Reformed Salem Church Society (Humboldt, Neb.), 1880-1980 [RG4008]
- Lincoln First German Congregational Church (Lincoln, Neb.), 1889-1977 [RG3022]
- Lincoln German Evangelical Congregational Salem Church (Lincoln, Neb.), 1901-1967 [RG4040]
- Lincoln German Evangelical Congregational Zion Church (Lincoln, Neb.), 1900-1966 [RG3037]
- Lincoln German Evangelical Lutheran Friedens Church (Lincoln, Neb.), 1907-1985 [RG4212]
- Lincoln German Evangelical Zion Church (Lincoln, Neb.), 1900-1966 [RG3037]
- McWilliams Precinct St. John's Parish, German Evangelical Church (McWilliams Precinct, Otoe County, Neb.), 1871-1917 [RG4361]
• Meridian German Presbyterian Church (Meridian, Neb.), 1873-1925 [RG4904]
• Seward Frieden German Evangelical Church (Seward, Neb.), 1878-1973 [RG3228]
• Stockham German Evangelical Congregational Church (Stockham, Neb.), 1898-1906 [RG4412]
• Stamford German Emmanuel Lutheran Church (Stamford, Neb.), 1899-1924 [RG4413]
• Sutton Federated Church (Sutton, Neb.), 1947-1962 [RG4173]
• Sutton First Congregational Church (Sutton, Neb.), 1892-1949 [RG4173]
• Sutton Free German Reformed Hope Church (Sutton, Neb.), 1908-1975 [RG3998]
• Sutton German Evangelical Congregational Church (Sutton, Neb.), 1876-1953 [RG4412]
• Sutton German Reformed Church (Sutton, Neb.), 1874-1946 [RG3218]
• Sutton Hope Reformed Church (Sutton, Neb.), 1908-1975 [RG3998]
• Sutton Methodist Episcopal Church (Sutton, Neb.), 1875-1949 [RG4173]
• York German Evangelical Lutheran Church (York, Neb.), 1879-1972 [RG3232]

When the archive does not have the record for your ancestor’s hometown, and the church is still in existence, a telephone call to the church secretary may indicate that the records are still in the home church. Louisville, Nebraska, for instance, has an old country Lutheran church whose records are still at the church.

DDC 929.43

This Dewey Decimal classification area has many helpful titles in German genealogy. An example is Roger Minert’s German immigrants in American church records: Volume 6: Nebraska Protestant records (2008 Rockport, ME, Picton Press) at 929.43 G373c

This is not a complete record of German church records available in Nebraska, but it is a helpful first stop. This compilation does not include churches attended by Germans from Russia.

NOTE: If you do an “anywhere” search in the online library catalog for 929.43 it will bring up all the titles in this area (43 hits as of this writing).

Government Finding Aids – for Federal, State, County, Municipal

The federal records consist of censuses, some fort records, federal land records, and federal department records. If your ancestor was in the post office, we also have Post office department records. https://history.nebraska.gov/collections/federal-government-records

For a list of finding aids for state-level records, go to: https://history.nebraska.gov/collections/state-government-records

County records will be particularly helpful to your research. Nebraska has records for almost all the counties of Nebraska, but the holdings for each county will differ. Go to this finding aid, https://history.nebraska.gov/collections/county-government-records and click on the county of your ancestor’s residence to see what we have for that location. One record set of particular interest is the marriage records, which we have on microfilm for most counties.
Municipal Records:  https://history.nebraska.gov/collections/municipal-government-records

Federal Tract Book Index

This index is not for Germans only but helpful in identifying your Germanic ancestral land holdings. This index has all “first deeds” from the federal government to the owner. If your ancestor bought land from an individual, he or she would not appear in this index.

Be sure to try different names, including the German form of your ancestor’s first and middle names. For instance, there are entries for William Koch and Wilhelm Koch in this database.

Deed Records

The Nebraska State Historical Society Library/Archives have some early deed records for some counties. You can check the finding aid for that county to see if they have deeds available. If not, you may need to go to the courthouse to investigate their land records.

Maps and Plat Books

Maps and plat books may not only show your German ancestor’s land holdings but will provide a snapshot of who his or her neighbors were. Because the first generation of settlers tended to settle in kinship and ethnic groups, you may want to check the maps for your Nebraska locality and get to know your ancestor’s neighbors, some of whom will probably be relations.

NSHS has a searchable County Atlas Name Index search. The index does not include “fuzzy” searches (which automatically look for other spellings), so be sure to try different spellings of your Germanic ancestral name. This index can be found at:

Example of a search for “Ruskamp,” a German family from Westphalia. The right-most column provides the microfilm reel you can check for a copy of the record.

City Directories

Remember that many immigrants settled in towns and cities. Others would settle first in a city before going to more rural areas. The Nebraska State Archives website has a searchable city/county directory index database. You can use this to see if your ancestor’s town or city is represented among our holdings and for what years these resources are available.

http://www.nebraskahistory.org/databases/city.shtml

For instance, a search in this index for Hall County turns up numerous years of coverage for Grand Island, as well as a farm and village directory in 1916 & 1917 for Hallam.

Germans in Omaha

In the earliest days of Germanic settlement in Omaha, the largest concentration was between South 10th and 13th streets, where there were several German merchants and meat markets. There were also several boarding houses run by Germans in this area. St. Joseph’s church was established in 1887 to serve German-speaking Catholics. Protestant Germans built a German Methodist church in 1886.²

In 1890, Germans made up 23% of Omaha’s populations. By 1910, Omaha’s percentage of Germans reached 57.4%. You will want to check the city records for your German Omaha records as well as the Douglas County finding aid. Of particular interest to genealogists are the Douglas County Health Department records, which show births and deaths.

Nebraska German Language Newspapers

The Society has more than 35,000 rolls of Nebraska newspapers, arranged alphabetically by town. The microfilms are arranged alphabetically by the name of the town where the newspaper was published.

The library has separate notebooks for those film numbers not in the 071 series. The German language newspapers are in the 073 series, so check these notebooks to see what might be available for your locality of interest and for what dates.

Go to http://www.nebraskahistory.org/lib-arch/research/library/newspapr.htm and click on the letter of the alphabet for your ancestor’s hometown (or others nearby) to check what newspapers may be available for your place and time. Do not forget to check English language newspapers as well.

Military Records

Many Germans and German-Americans served in the Civil War (1861-1865), in the Nebraska Battalion or elsewhere. NSHS has a Nebraska Civil War Veteran database. Try your German ancestor’s name and surname variants to see if he may have served.

http://www.nebraskahistory.org/databases/necivilwarveterans.shtml

Your Nebraska ancestor may have served at a prior residence before moving to Nebraska. If you have access to Ancestry.com or Fold3.com, these databases have indexes, and, in the case of Fold3, digital images of some records.

NSHS also has a searchable index of WWI Draft Cards online, which you can then find on microfilm. This index can be found at:
http://www.nebraskahistory.org/databases/WWIdraft.shtml
Say you are researching a German Schmidt family in Saunders County. A search for “Schmidt” in Saunders County yields 9 hits in the WWI Draft Card index. The record for Bernhard Schmidt gives his birthdate and his exact birthplace.

To get a copy of Bernhard Schmidt’s draft registration, you would look at Record Group (RG) 544, Roll 44. This series is arranged alphabetically by county, then by surname.

The Nebraska Historical Society also has Selective Service Records at Record Group 18; the seven rolls are arranged alphabetically by surname. These Adjutant General records often show dates of service, the names of company, rank, transfers, as well as place of birth.
Not only does this record furnish Bernhard Schmidt’s birthplace, but provides additional information to enhance your family history, including that he was a non-commissioned officer in German colonial Africa, his occupation is watchmaker, and he works for Anderson and Thorsen in Wahoo. Further, Bernhard Schmidt had not yet been naturalized. Knowing this, a check of the Saunders County finding aid shows the microfilm reels to see if you can collect his naturalization record. For instance you would check, RG204 (Saunders County) Roll #2 Card Index to Naturalizations, Papian-Zuhlke to find out when Bernard was naturalized. The actual records are filmed in chronological order.

German Prisoners of War

Germans were held at various military installations in Nebraska during WWII. Some of these men went back to the homeland, while others stayed and became Americans.
In RG 1517.AM, the Fort Robinson Reference collection has a wide variety of records, which includes records (some in German) for German prisoners of war held at that outpost. The detailed finding aid for this collection can be found at: http://nebraskahistory.org/lib-arch/research/manuscripts/organize/fortrob.pdf

Series 4, Prisoners of War 1943-1961, has a variety of records, including correspondence, daybooks, diaries, reminiscences, certificates for completion of classes, interviews, etc. Anyone with a family member who was a prisoner of war at Fort Robinson should look at this collection.

Germans from Russia

Germans from Russia Photograph Collection at RG 4427

American Volga Relief Society (AVRS) letters and documents
The original manuscript documents for the AVRS are kept at the archives at RG 4879.AM

Russia under the Bolsheviks began a campaign against German Russians called the “age of the Great Massacres,” from 1917-1921. This period was followed by a period of mass starvation. Germans from Russia who had immigrated to other countries still had family back in the old country and in 1921, George Repp of Portland, Oregon organized the Volga Relief Society. The Central States Volga Relief Society was formed in Lincoln, Nebraska and the two organizations merged in 1922.
