SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

This collection consists of case files and legal documents concerning cases held in the U.S. District Court of Nebraska, 1875-1914, arranged into four subgroups: 1) U.S. ex rel, John Gordon vs. George Crook, 1875; 2) U.S. ex rel Standing Bear vs. George Crook, 1879; 3) U.S. vs. Bartlett Richards and Will Comstock et al, 1903-1914; and 4) Omaha Tribe of Indians vs. United States, 1912.

Subgroup One, Gordon vs. Crook, consists of legal documents relating to the abortive John Gordon Expedition to the Black Hills in 1875. Gordon's party was arrested by troops under the command of Gen. George Crook. Gordon was imprisoned for attempting to violate the provisions of the Sioux Indian treaty of 1868 which reserved the Black Hills region for the Indians. These documents relate to Gordon's application for a writ of habeas corpus. The records were borrowed from the District Court in Omaha for microfilming in October 1965.

Subgroup Two, Standing Bear vs. Crook, contains a copy of the transcript of a hearing concerning a writ of habeas corpus for Standing Bear and twenty-five other Ponca Indians to be released from detention. The Indian party had left Indian Territory and returned to Nebraska to bury Standing Bear's son. General Crook arrested them, but an interview with Standing Bear by T. H. Tibbles concerning the episode prompted attorneys Poppleton and Webster to volunteer their services in representing the Indians. In the hearing Federal Judge Elmer S. Dundy declared an Indian was a person within the meaning of the Habeas Corpus act. He ruled that the Indians had not broken any laws or treaties and ordered them released. Copies of the proceedings were ordered from the National Archives in October 1974.

Subgroup Three consists of three cases involving Bartlett Richards, William G. Comstock and others. The first two cases were tried against the defendants for enclosing 212,000 acres of public lands. Richards and Comstock were president and vice president of the Nebraska Land and Feeding Company. This company operated the Spade, Bar C, and Overton ranches in Cherry, Sheridan, and Box Butte counties. President Theodore Roosevelt meant for this case to serve as an example to cattle ranchers who had been illegally enclosing public lands since the 1870s. In the third case, Richards and Comstock were tried for conspiracy to secure title to public land through fraudulent means. These cases were disappointing, however, because although the defendants were found guilty, they were given only lenient sentences.

Subgroup Four, Omaha Tribe vs. U.S., consists of depositions taken in a case over ownership of certain lands claimed by the Omaha Indians. One set of depositions was given by members of the Omaha tribe stating that their tribal lands extended into most of northeastern and north central Nebraska. The other set of depositions was given by members of the Ponca Tribe on behalf of the United States government. They claimed that the Poncas controlled much of the land claimed by the Omahas. The depositions contain information about the history of the Ponca and Omaha tribes, family relations, various treaty violations and breaches of promise by the U.S. government, and dissatisfaction with various Indian agents.
