HISTORICAL NOTE

Kearney County is located south of the Platte River, which is it's northern boundary, in south central Nebraska, about 24 miles from the Kansas state line. The county's early history began near the time of the establishment of Fort Kearny in 1848. It was formally organized by the Territorial Legislature in 1860 and included the present-day counties of Kearney, Franklin, Harlan, and Phelps. Kearney City (now extinct) became the county seat. After the Union Pacific Railroad was completed in 1866, this town disappeared and when Fort Kearny was abandoned in 1871 nearly all the old settlers left the county. This early settlement was concentrated in the northern part of the county near Fort Kearny and the Oregon Trail. Kearney county was named for this fort.

In 1871 the legislature redefined the boundaries and divided Kearney County into the four counties listed above. Settlers began arriving again and in 1872 an election was held to locate the county seat and to elect county officials. Lowell, the oldest town in the county located in the northeastern part and on the line of the Burlington and Missouri River Railroad, was chosen as the county seat. However, in November of 1876 the citizens voted to move it to the more centrally located "Minden." At that time, Minden was open land without a building or a residence. This move was halted by an injunction until 1878.

By 1882, Minden's population had grown to almost 300 and today has a population of nearly 3000. This town is also famous for its Christmas lights on the courthouse since 1915 and has been dubbed "Christmas City" for many years. It is also the location of Harold Warp's famous "Pioneer Village" established in 1952 and covering 20 acres with about 30,000 historic items housed in 25 building including the personal collection of Senator Carl Curtis, to which the Nebraska State Historical Society was a contributor.

When settlers first began to move through the area, the eastern farmers thought the land was worthless for agricultural purposes. They were more interested in hunting gold. Today, the area has been almost completely devoted to farming and stock
