HISTORICAL NOTE

Merrick County is located in the east central portion of Nebraska. The county was established and its boundaries defined by an act of Legislature approved November 4, 1858. No organized county government existed until 1864 when a substantial increase in the county population prompted an election for April 18, 1864. In 1869, Lone Tree was selected as the county seat but a courthouse was not constructed until 1871. Until that time, the County Board of Supervisors met in private residences. In 1875, Lone Tree changed its name to Central City due to its central location in the agricultural region of Nebraska.

Today, the population of Merrick County remains low compared to others, 8,042. It covers an area of 478 square miles. Peak population occurred in 1920 at 10,793. The county was named for Elvira Merrick, the maiden name of Representative Henry W. Depuy's wife. Depuy introduced the bill creating the county in 1858.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

The bulk of Merrick County records remains at the county courthouse. The State Archives collection consists of records used most often by researchers. If records for a particular office are not available at our facility, this is noted on the inventory.

The collection is arranged into nine subgroups: 1) Assessor (no records); 2) Treasurer (no records); 3) County Board of Supervisors, 1864-1972; 4) County Clerk, 1869-1972; 5) Register of Deeds (no records); 6) County Court (no records); 7) District Court, 1869-1961; 8) Superintendent of Schools (no records); and 9) School District Records (no records).
