HISTORICAL NOTE

Cass County, Nebraska, was one of the original eight counties organized by the proclamation of acting Governor Thomas Cuming in 1854. It is located in eastern Nebraska on the Missouri River. It was named for General Lewis Cass, an American statesman and patriot.

The early history of the area is marked by traders. In 1848, Libeas Coon established a ferry transporting many people, including Mormons, across the Missouri River. The first permanent settlement was made in 1853 by Samuel Martin, who had obtained special permission from the U. S. Department of War to open a trading post at the site of present day Plattsmouth.

The county was surveyed in 1845 by Augustus Spires, initial settler of Rock Creek. The first election was held on December 12, 1854. Plattsmouth was made the county seat.
