HISTORICAL NOTE

The office of the Nebraska Attorney General grew out of specific legislation authorizing the Governor to employ counsel to perform legal duties for the state. The position of an Attorney General was made elective by an Act of 1869. Opposition to the continuance of the office existed until the Constitutional Convention of 1875, but the office was included with the other constitution elective offices by that assembly.

An act creating the Department of Justice with the Attorney General as its head was created by the Legislature in 1919. This department has "general control and supervision of all actions and legal proceedings in which the State of Nebraska may be a party or be interested, and has charge and control of all legal business of all departments and bureaus of the state, or any office thereof, which requires the services of attorney or counsel in order to protect the interests of the state".

Beginning with the general election of November, 1966, the office of the Attorney General became a four-year elective position.

The Attorney General has the same powers and prerogatives in each of the counties as the county attorneys have in their respective counties. Among his other powers are the following: (1) To appear and defend actions and claims against the state; (2) To consult with and advise the county attorneys, when requested by them, in all criminal matters and in matters relating to public revenue; (3) To give, when required, without fee, his opinion in writings upon all questions of law submitted to him by the Governor, or the head of any executive department, or by the Legislature; (4) At the request of the Governor or the head of any executive department to prosecute or defend for the state all actions and proceedings, civil or criminal, relating to any matter connected with their departments; (5) To enforce the proper application of moneys appropriated by the Legislature to the various funds of the state, and prosecute breaches of trust in the administration of such funds; (6) To prepare, when requested by the Governor or other executive officers, proper drafts for contracts, forms or other writings which may be wanted for use by the state; (7) To appear for the state and prosecute and defend all actions and proceedings, civil or criminal, in the Supreme Court in which the state is interested or a party; and when requested by the Governor or the Legislature, to appear for the state and prosecute or defend any action or conduct any investigation in which the state is interested or a party, before any court, officer, board, tribunal or commission.

The Attorney General is a member of the Board of Canvassers; Board of Pardons; State Records Board and Nebraska Commission on Intergovernmental Cooperation. (For further information see the most recent Blue Book of Nebraska).

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

This record group consists of records of the Nebraska Department of Justice arranged in two subgroups: Subgroup One, General Records of the Department of Justice; and Subgroup Two, Records of Nebraska vs. Wyoming, Colorado, and the United States, filed as an original action in the U. S. Supreme Court, October term, 1934.

Subgroup One, General Records of the Department of Justice includes a variety of records relating to the traditional and ongoing statutory functions of the Department and the office of Attorney General. This subgroup is arranged in the following series: (1) Correspondence, 1894-1960; (2) Case files, 1910-1960; (3) Opinions, 1933-1938; (4) Financial Records, 1911-1962; (5) Appearance Dockets, 1900-1927; (6) Office Dockets, 1892-1900; (7) Corporation Records, 1896-1934; (8) Day Books, 1935-1956; (9) Deed Registers, 1922-1924; (10) Mortgage Registers, 1922-1924; and (11) Miscellany, 1881-1942.

The bulk of subgroup one consists of correspondence and case files of the Nebraska Attorney General's office. The case files, like the correspondence, are arranged chronologically but the case files are also subdivided alphabetically within four general time periods, 1910-1929; 1930-1940; 1940-1950; and 1950-1960. Cases dealing with railroad assessment and taxation during the 1920's were located after the other case files had been arranged. Therefore, these railroad cases may be found in boxes near the end of Series Two. A small number of cases overlap from one time period to another. Through this subgroup an attempt has been made to maintain the files as originally organized. Additional material within subgroup one includes financial records, various corporation records, dockets, registers and miscellany. Most of these records were transferred to the State Archives from the Department of Justice in 1968-1969. As per instructions from the Attorney General, his permission is necessary in order to gain access to the records in subgroup one. Please consult the Archivist. Subgroup one will be considered open for the periodic addition of records which may be transferred to the State Archives in accordance with the statutes relating to permanent historical or legal records.

← Subgroup Two, Records of Nebraska vs. Wyoming, Colorado, and the United States, 1934-1945, is arranged in six series: (1) Evidence and Hearing Data, 1932-1945; (2) Nebraska Canal and Irrigation District Files; (3) Correspondence, 1922-1945; (4) Transcripts of Hearings before the Special Master, 1936-1941; (5) Exhibits; and (6) Briefs and other printed data.

The records in subgroup two related to the adjudication of water rights in the North Platte River, a stream rising in Colorado and flowing through Wyoming and Nebraska. Specifically the records deal with the case of Nebraska vs. Wyoming, Colorado, Impleaded Defendant, and the United States, Intervenor, filed as an original action the U. S. Supreme Court, October Term, 1934. The bulk of the records within this subgroup consist of evidence, correspondence, transcripts of hearings, exhibits, and printed briefs prepared or accumulated during the period of litigation, 1934-1945. Much of the data was developed during the presentation of Nebraska's case while other files deal with the Wyoming, Colorado, or the United States' arguments and are copies of evidence or exhibits accumulated by the other parties to the suit. The original order of the records has been maintained as much as possible. Series One and Series Three have been reconstructed because the original arrangement was lost. Some duplicate materials have been retained in order to have them available for removal and study by the Nebraska Attorney General. Although the final decree in Nebraska vs. Wyoming was issued in 1945, some data within this subgroup may be pertinent to contemporary issues involving intrastate and interstate water administration.

Controversy between Nebraska, Wyoming, and Colorado over the use of water from the North Platte River had existed since the early 1900's. Many Nebraska irrigation projects had been established prior to 1900 and thus were senior in right of appropriation to later Wyoming projects. In 1904, the U. S. Bureau of Reclamation built the North Platte project which included the Pathfinder reservoir in Wyoming and which irrigated some 70,000 acres in Nebraska and Wyoming. As irrigated acreage increased in the region, competition for available water became greater. Efforts to settle interstate water disputes by compact failed during the 1920's. Yet the water supply in the North Platte River remained adequate for most irrigation purposes until the following decade.

During the early 1930's, drouth severely reduced the flow of water in the North Platte and many Nebraska irrigators with appropriations senior to those in Wyoming ran short of water because of Wyoming's upstream diversions. Wyoming's refusal to release water to Nebraska senior appropriators in 1934, and the Bureau of Reclamation's intention to build another upstream reservoir with a retroactive priority date of 1904 were the immediate reasons for the Nebraska suit filed against Wyoming in the U.S. Supreme Court.

In October, 1935, the Supreme Court appointed a Special Master, Michael J. Doherty, to hear evidence, to report findings of fact and conclusions of law, and make recommendations for a decree. The following month, Wyoming succeeded in having Colorado made an impleaded defendant. Hearings before the Special Master began in July, 1936, and continued periodically until December, 1941. The Supreme Court granted the United States leave to intervene in the case in April, 1938.

Nebraska's argument rested primarily on the principal of priority appropriations. Wyoming proposed a principle of equitable apportionment combined with a principle of economic use. The United States, claimed absolute ownership, as sovereign, of all the waters.

After months of investigational work, numerous hearings, and thousands of pages of testimony, the Master made his recommendations for the settlement of the case. In a 1945 opinion, the U. S. Supreme Court generally agreed with the Master's report. Briefly, the decision recognized the principle of priority appropriation and apportioned the natural flow of the North Platte River in the Whalen to Tri-State Dam Section 25% to Wyoming and 75% to Nebraska.

Nebraska's case was handled by the office of the Attorney General through the appointment of a special counsel, Paul F. Good. Mr. Good had been Nebraska Attorney General when the original action was filed and was retained as special counsel for the duration of the case. Others prominent on Nebraska's behalf were William Wright, Attorney General, 1935-1937; Richard C. Hunter, Attorney General, 1937-1939; Walter R. Johnson, Attorney General, 1939-1949; Ralph I. Meeker, Consulting Engineer; Marion E. Ball, Hydrographer and Hydraulic Engineer; and Robert H. Willis, head of the Nebraska Bureau of Irrigation Water Power and Drainage, 1918-1951.

Correspondents include Ball, Marion E., 1939-1942; Davis, Clarence, 1922; Doherty, Michael E., 1934-1945; Good, Paul F., 1934-1945; Hunter, Richard C., 1936-1938; Johnson, Walter R., 1939-1946; Meeker, Ralph I., 1934-1944; Willis, Robert H., 1934-1944; and Wright, William, 1935-1936.

The Records in Subgroup Two were transferred to the State Archives from the Department of Justice in 1972.
