

Nebraska History posts materials online for your personal use. Please remember that the contents of Nebraska History are copyrighted by the Nebraska State Historical Society (except for materials credited to other institutions). The NSHS retains its copyrights even to materials it posts on the web.

For permission to re-use materials or for photo ordering information, please see: http://www.nebraskahistory.org/magazine/permission.htm

Nebraska State Historical Society members receive four issues of Nebraska History and four issues of Nebraska History News annually. For membership information, see:

http://nebraskahistory.org/admin/members/index.htm

Article Title: Blind

Full Citation: Edward Everett Dale, "Blind," Nebraska History 25 (1944): 179

URL of article: http://www.nebraskahistory.org/publish/publicat/history/full-text/NH1944Blind.pdf

Date: 9/18/2017

Article Summary: A World War II poem

Scroll Down for complete article.

Blind

How sad you say that I should lose my sight
The very day the armistice was signed,

After three years along the western front in endless night Must walk the earth. Yes, I am blind.

But keep your sympathy for those who need it more For men who through those long and cruel years Toiled on in shop or factory or store

Heedless of Europe's tragedy of blood and tears.

.

I see the dreary stretch of No-Man's land
Flanked by the trenches — galleries of hell,
From which stream charging men on every hand
While flaming batteries shower shot and shell.

I see our gallant bird-men high in air,
I see the Hun fall back as we advance,
And lean, brown men — my countrymen are there
Fighting beside the blue clad sons of France.
I see their faces shining like the sun
Fired by a light not seen on land or sea
Because they know the cause at last is won;
God! How I pity those who cannot see!

- Edward Everett Dale.