Administrative History

The Nebraska Professional Practices Commission was created in 1967 by the Legislature with the passage of LB457. It became effective July 1, 1968. The commission ended in 2024 with the passage of LB1306.

The commission was composed of 12 educators appointed by the governor. It advised the State Board of Education regarding rules and regulations for the standards of professional practice for teachers and administrators. Areas included ethical and professional performance, competency, continuance in professional service, and contractual obligations. The commission held hearings and made recommendations to the board concerning alleged violations of standards of professional ethics and practices. The commission was funded from revenues collected from teacher certificates.
